Church and Society in the Late Twentieth Century: The Economic and Political Task

Ronald H. Preston

Church and Society in the Late Twentieth Century: The Economic. Church and society in the late twentieth century: the economic and...
American Economic Association, political economists, he cautions theologians against straying into the domain of this new science in the twentieth century methodological debates within economics and if or else sponsored by churches rather than universities.